SUMMARY

Bradley is uncertain about his academic path and is experiencing feelings of overload and uncertainty.

KEY CONCERNS

- Academic success at 3.8 GPA and diverse course offerings
- Interest in social work, policy, and community organizing but not sure which major or graduate program would best suit him
- Feeling overwhelmed by the grad school application process and possible career paths
- Uncertainty about whether to major in Sociology or Social Work or Political Science

ACTION PLAN

- Help Bradley brainstorm a mix of social work, policy, and graduate coursework that aligns with his interests and career goals
- Refer Brad to graduate advising for interdisciplinary major options
- Offer one-on-one sessions exploring career paths in social justice, community organizing, or social policy
- Encourage Brad to apply for the Graduate School of Education's Social Justice and Equity track

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a follow-up meeting after Brad's GRE prep review and career exploration session
- Suggest attending a graduate student panel on career options in social work and policy next semester
- Recommend Brad register for graduate-level courses related to social justice and community engagement
