SUMMARY

Carl is experiencing academic stress due to a heavy course load in the humanities, including advanced classes, and is reaching out for academic support.

KEY CONCERNS

- Struggling with academic performance in advanced humanities courses
- Falling behind in classes, including writing seminar and ancient history classes
- Uncertainty about whether to continue taking advanced courses or if it's time to step back
- Feeling involved in multiple student organizations and trying to balance academic work with community involvement

ACTION PLAN

- Recommend scheduling a check-in session to review academic progress and assignments
- Provide guidance on managing advanced coursework in a way that doesn't overwhelm the brain
- Recommend meeting with a first-year seminar teacher or peer tutor for support
- Encourage participation in academic support events (e.g., tutoring center, writing center)

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a follow-up check-in after finals week to assess progress
- Offer referral to academic counseling for students with complex academic needs
- Encourage reflection on how to prioritize self-care and balance in a complex academic environment
