SUMMARY

Katie is uncertain about graduate school and transfer options in East Asian studies, leading to uncertainties about career path and academic direction.

KEY CONCERNS

- Considering graduate programs in Japanese or Chinese language and culture
- Interest in transferring to a different program if graduate school doesn't work out
- Uncertainty about academic fit and potential career paths in East Asian studies and language teaching
- Lack of understanding of graduate program requirements and application processes

ACTION PLAN

- Help Katie identify potential graduate programs in East Asian languages and literatures, such as language teaching, translation, or literary studies
- Discuss potential transfer options with a faculty member specializing in East Asian studies or language teaching
- Recommend attending information sessions and meeting with graduate advisors for East Asian studies and other humanities programs
- Offer guidance on application materials and interview preparation for graduate programs in East Asia

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a follow-up meeting in a few weeks to check if Katie has made a decision or is still considering options
- Evaluate progress toward graduate school or transfer decision by annual check-in
- Recommend continued support for academic exploration and career planning
