SUMMARY

Kevin is experiencing academic and social adjustment concerns, but is still in the process of finding his fit in the Environmental Studies program.

KEY CONCERNS

- First-year disconnection from environmental studies track
- Social isolation in the first-year year
- Uncertainty about fit within the major
- Need for academic and social integration in the program

ACTION PLAN

- Recommend a campus tour of the environmental studies program to show how the courses connect
- Encourage Kevin to attend social events across the university, especially those related to environmentalism
- Discuss the first-year curriculum and how to balance academic and social engagement
- Introduce a social-studies major or interdisciplinary track for future consideration

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a check-in after first-year seminar to assess adjustment status
- Refer Kevin to the advising office for environmental studies major or interdisciplinary track options
- Monitor academic performance and provide support through transcript improvement and course selection recommendations
