SUMMARY

Patricia is struggling with upper-level sociology and anthropology courses, which are more difficult than her earlier courses and lacking a strong background in sociology.

KEY CONCERNS

- Finding harder than expected in complex sociological concepts
- Struggling to engage with difficult material even after reading
- Feeling frustrated and at risk of falling behind
- Need to adjust approach or seek out help for higher stakes assignments

ACTION PLAN

- Recommend staying on course if grading is low, but be aware of the difficulty of these courses
- Encourage Patricia to seek out a sociology tutor if the work gets too difficult
- Discuss strategies for breaking down complex concepts, even if the student doesn't have a strong background in sociology
- Recommend attending tutoring sessions or writing workshops if available

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a check-in later this semester to monitor progress and whether to seek out a sociology major adviser
