SUMMARY

Joseph is struggling to adjust to a major in Computer Science and is uncertain about his academic fit and future plans.

KEY CONCERNS

- Repeating difficult courses and struggling with grades in already-offered classes
- Feeling disconnected from the Computer Science community and uncertain if he's fit in the major
- Questioning whether to continue in the major or if it's time to reconsider
- Need for academic support, including academic coaching and revision strategies

ACTION PLAN

- Schedule a meeting to review course transcripts and identify which classes still apply to the major
- Discuss how to improve writing and critical thinking skills in Computer Science
- Introduce a mentorship program for students in the major to connect with peers and ask questions
- Encourage exploration of other interdisciplinary majors or career paths that fit better with Joseph's interests and abilities

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Check in before final exams to assess understanding of required coursework
- Offer support for a final project or thesis if applicable
- Refer Joseph to the writing center if academic pressure becomes overwhelming
