SUMMARY

Danielle is experiencing academic stress due to progressing academically in graduate school despite being in a different academic setting than high school.

KEY CONCERNS

- Struggling with academic performance in high-level graduate coursework
- Feeling ahead of herself in high-stakes academic settings
- Pressure to graduate in a timely manner
- Experiencing academic burnout and uncertainty about future success

ACTION PLAN

- Help Danielle identify how much of her academic work has shifted from high school to graduate-level standards
- Recommendation to increase balance between coursework and personal and professional demands
- Strategies for managing high-stakes academic pressure, including mindfulness and time management
- Referral to graduate student support center for academic coaching

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Schedule a check-in session in a high-stakes academic setting later this semester
- Offer academic coaching for graduate school, including time management and advanced course selection
- Recommendation to apply for academic accommodations if Danielle is feeling overwhelmed
- Help Danielle set realistic goals for graduation and integrate academic success with personal growth
