SUMMARY

Lori is struggling with academic pressure, anxiety, and the pressure to graduate on time in her major, and is not sure how to cope with her workload.

KEY CONCERNS

- Struggling with academic performance, feeling discouraged and anxious
- Working in a major research seminar, which is adding to the pressure
- Worried about graduation deadline and feeling overwhelmed
- Wasn't sure how to stay focused or what to do next semester

ACTION PLAN

- Schedule a confidential academic counseling session to discuss strategies for managing workload and academic performance
- Recommend academic coaching to help manage stress and improve critical thinking
- Discuss potential graduation alternatives (e.g., delaying thesis or switching to a different major)
- Encourage Lori to explore non-academic ways to achieve graduation, such as writing a book or creating a project that aligns with her passion

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Check in after the academic counseling session to check progress and openness
- Refer Lori to a mentorship program for graduate students with high-pressure majors
- Encourage follow-up meetings to discuss graduation timeline and potential career options after graduation
