SUMMARY

Karen is experiencing academic and social adjustment concerns despite taking a variety of college-level courses.

KEY CONCERNS

- Struggling to maintain a strong academic performance despite taking difficult sociology and anthropology courses
- Difficulty understanding the material in these courses and feeling overwhelmed
- Isolation from campus and lack of connectivity with peers
- Uncertainty about fit and future potential in college environment

ACTION PLAN

- Help Karen adjust to the academic demands of sociology and anthropology by scheduling regular check-ins and providing review materials
- Introduce Karen to first-year student resources through campus and community organizations
- Encourage social activities through the curriculum (e.g., class discussions, field trips, workshops)
- Refer Karen to a peer mentorship program or first-year success center

FOLLOW UP PLAN

- Check progress after midterms and provide feedback on academic performance
- Offer follow-up sessions to address any academic or social concerns
- Encourage Karen to join a new first-year seminar next semester to build relationships with peers
